

Decree of the Ashen Register Concerning Ignatz Fellgard

Let this writing be entered upon the public leaf and read where petitions are heard, so that rumor may not wear the mask of law.

It is hereby declared that Ignatz Fellgard is a minor figure of the Ashen Era. His name shall be kept in the register without ornament, omission, or borrowed distinction. He is recorded as one who serves as an Herbalist, and no office, allegiance, rank, or charge beyond that statement shall be assigned to him by clerks, heralds, witnesses, or those who profit from confusion.

The birth-record of Ignatz Fellgard shall state plainly: Ignatz was born in 257 AS.

Let no copyist alter the year. Let no speaker turn the mark of birth into a prophecy, a title, or a warrant. The year shall stand as written, neither praised nor condemned. Any record that gives another year shall be treated as corrupted until its error is removed.

Concerning his outward person, this decree establishes restraint. No canonical physical traits or distinctive visual features are established for Ignatz Fellgard. Therefore no official description shall grant him a scar, stature, color, garment, deformity, beauty, or other visible sign as though such a thing were sworn fact. Those who claim to know his appearance may keep their claims to themselves unless lawful testimony is later entered; the register shall not carry invention in the place of knowledge.

Concerning his inward manner, the same restraint is commanded. No canonical temperament or emotional disposition is established for Ignatz Fellgard. He shall not be named gentle, cruel, fearful, merry, faithless, loyal, sullen, or otherwise disposed merely because a tale requires such a shape. Silence in the record is not permission for every tongue to fill it.

This decree does not raise Ignatz Fellgard above his station, nor cast him beneath it. It does not make his service as an Herbalist a badge of virtue or a mark of suspicion. It preserves only what may be stated without falsehood: his name, his place as a minor figure of the Ashen Era, his service as an Herbalist, and his birth in 257 AS.

All keepers of rolls, tablets, notices, and spoken registers shall heed this wording. Let the ash settle where it will. Let the unknown remain unknown. Thus is the record guarded from embellishment, and thus shall Ignatz Fellgard stand: named, dated, serving, and not otherwise invented.
