

Petition of the Sealed Coast Concerning Gloamreach

To the Lords, Wardens, Captains, and Keepers of the Ashen Realm, and to all who possess authority to hear a voice raised beneath quarantine:

I, the undersigned petitioner, set forth this plea concerning Gloamreach, which lies upon the Pale Coast and stands among its core locations.

Let it be known that Gloamreach is not merely another watch-post upon the coast. Its status is quarantined, and by that mark it is set apart from the surrounding coast. Its gates are guarded, its paths watched, and its silence made into a law stronger than iron. Those within are kept from easy passage, while those without are left to wonder what waits behind the sealed ways.

Gloamreach bears the pallid, bleak character of the Pale Coast. Its stones seem to have forgotten the warmth of the sun. Its shores carry the same drained aspect, yet the place possesses a deeper shadow, as though its name had become a cloak laid over every tower, doorway, and face. It is a settlement of dim thresholds and veiled purpose. Even the wind there seems to approach with caution.

The garrison of Gloamreach numbers 2,483. This is no handful of frightened watchmen to be dismissed as a token guard. Such a force stands as a warning, though no warning has been made plain to those who must live beyond the quarantine line. If the garrison is required to hold the place, let the reason be spoken. If the quarantine is required to remain, let its terms be declared. If neither truth nor remedy may be offered, then at least grant the coast a hearing before rumor fills the silence with worse things.

We do not petition that Gloamreach be opened heedlessly. We do not ask that its guards abandon their posts or that the quarantine be broken by force. We ask for judgment, inspection, and a lawful accounting of the burden placed upon the surrounding coast. Let provisions be measured, passages marked, and messages permitted under watch. Let those confined within Gloamreach not vanish from all reckoning, and let those outside it not be treated as though their fear were guilt.

For Gloamreach feels sealed-off and ominous, defined by isolation and guarded uncertainty. Such a place may be necessary. It must not become unquestionable.

By my hand, and by the hands of those who add their marks below, I beg that this petition be received, preserved, and answered.
